Working in Process

Modeling Marked Self-Exciting Process

- In this paper, we propose a new method to model the self-exciting process with marks when more than one observations exist. We show that our method is flexible in both continuous and discrete mark space, and can be applied to handle the case where dependent censoring is presented. We demonstrate the new estimation method via a simulation of ETAS model, and applied it to study the cost-sharing effect in health insurance using the RAND health insurance experiment data.
